verse one:

Well there's this feeling I get When i'm not feeling my best and there's nothing that can make it go away As I can't do just a little I get Stuck in the middle Of my own private groundhog day

bridge:

Even though i know that i'm gonna regret it all tomorrow
I will let the sorrow fall where it may
At least until....

chorus:

The morning after, the night before
When I don't think that I could hate myself anymore
Such a simple thing, yet I can't comprehend Why I keep making the same mistakes, over and over again

verse two:

Well this cell that I built For myself and my guilt Keeps me safe until my next escape and there's no use denying I'm in need of supplying I gotta get my hands on something I can take

bridge:

Even though I know I'm gonna regret it all tomorrow
I will let the sorrow fall where it may
At least until...

chorus:

The morning after, the night before
When I don't think I could hate myself anymore
Such a simple thing, yet I can't comprehend
Why I keep making the same mistakes, (over and over again) (x2)
I will let the sorrow fall where it may verse three:

All my sincere intent Ends up turning to lament Cause I don't know when it's time to stop At least until...

chorus:

The morning after, the night before
When I don't think I could hate myself anymore
Such a simple thing, yet I can't comprehend
Why I keep making the same mistakes, over and over again

The morning after, the night before (x4)
Why I keep making the same mistakes, over and over again
The morning after, the night before.
