What do they believe in
What are they searching for, as people live
Nobody sees it and stands there
Without moving at the night

A person who sneers at himself,
"I don't even have a dream"
Is a loser with nowhere to go

Something that burns furiously in my mind
I'll go, if it is the truth

I would only fight,
Even though I was hurt,
To the end

I would only grasp it if I believe in it
And if I'm searching for it
If it doesn't collapse even if I ask it questions,
Then that is justice

I am surely feeling it
Live through today
I am not making a fool of it
Because I can not speak about tomorrow

If I could put something like "courage" or "love" into the words,
I can make an excuse for a resignation

Something that shines in my heart
Raise a sword in my mind over the head
Hesitation and fear make the darkness

Risky battle, even one second, is fatal to my life
I will not die
As long as the soldier's blood continues to flow in me

I would only fight, even though I was hurt, to the end
I would only grasp it if I believe in it and if I'm searching for it

If it doesn't collapse even though I ask it questions
Then that is justice
