rooms full of salt fault my pluck and a poets charm so far, ever far little stars that burn the holes in my soul and everything just feels like rain the road we're on, the things we crave

and everything just feels like rain
if I should sleep, what's left to dream?
when everything feels like rain drift as I dive find the deep out of reach of all light far, ever far restless tides along the changing shore

if I should sleep, what's left to dream?
