How many years have gone since we went down?
How many tears you lost on dried out ground?
You see the sun and watch the rivers flow
Can you remember the fall?

How many times we tried to change the world?
How many stars we saw in sacred terms?
So now let's keep an eye upon the unknown land
And try to follow your call

There ain't no shadows on eternal land
No poisoned rain is falling down on man
Watch out... we found the place we have been searching for
In the valley of a strange land

At the walls of mighty cries we rush the silence
On a celebration day
In the everlasting glow of frozen fires
We locked the door and burned the cage

My book of shadows told from final crimes
Under your spell I could not realize
That I found out that everything was said and done
In the valley of a strange land

At the walls of mighty cries we rush the silence
On a celebration day
In the everlasting glow of frozen fires
We locked the door and burned the cage
