Home - 2 Days till Midnight

Time keeps ticking, ticking away im still looking for an, easy way to say that nothing matters and what if it did just choose your dreams any way you seem fit it's o.k to hold on to the past but not to long cause it made you feel so strong, now you know where you belong a little place called home

When there's nowhere to go, when your down and your low
when the feeling becomes so much more than you know just remember, that there's a place called home.....

When there's no one around to pick you up when your
down
just take a look at yourself and turn this mess around and start heading for that place called home

Can't find a reason why your standing so tall cause your still looking, for the meaning of it all have you ever wondered how it made you feel did you ever question all this pain being real it's o.k to discover the world in your own ways there's a place where the heart stays and i know one of these days you'll find your own way home

low
know
just remember.....
When there's no one around to pick you up when your

just take a look at this mess and turn yourself around it's always easy when there's nothing at stake just free your mind from all the rules that you break

And then some day, it's gonna be like some say no other place like home.
