And if you've offered your pain
And I saved it, all I could
And, believe me, honey, no one ever answers my prayers

When we ever come across things... oh, now

Don't you ever tell me why?
Don't you ever tell me why?
Oh, now

The devil's all you ever had now, love
He diseases your mind; he diseases your mind
The devil's all you ever had now, love
He just eases your pain; just eases your pain

I seen trace will never come
And in motion of a ring gone
And believe me, honey, I've seen truth and tells
When we ever come across sayings, oh, now

Don't you ever tell me why?
Don't you ever tell me why... whoa, now

The devil's all you ever had now, love
He just eases your mind; just eases your mind
The devil's all you ever had now, love
He diseases your pain; diseases your pain

Oh, if you see the preacher man, now
Do you see where the lord went wrong?
Oh, if you see the preacher man, now
Do you see where the lord went wrong, now?
Oh, if you see the preacher man

The devil's all you ever had now, love
Do you see where the world went wrong?
Oh, if you see the preacher man
The devil's all you ever had now, love
Do you see where the lord went wrong, now?

The devil's all you ever had now, love
