You said this is a used up world
You follow the river and your home is in the mountains
You've forgotten your questions lost your purpose
The beauty is gone
And this house still smells and sounds like you
All your pillows and records

I had you here
Had you
I had you here
Had you

You said this is the end of the world
And I believed
But knowing everything I know now

It's just easier to understand
You are carried by the river
You were born in the ocean
And this house still smells and sounds like you

So ask all your questions
Try all their answers
And change as we may
What ever should follow
I love you

I had you here
Had you
I had you here
Had you
