-Iâ€™m Poetry, I give thee birth
-Iâ€™m Passion and thou wouldst not exist without me
-Iâ€™ Poetry for I express my Passions Iâ€™m Passion for I feel thy Poetry

And so began the tale that a minstrel told and that now it plesseth me to tell There was Love betwixt them but they were kept asunder Hate there was betwixt them too but they were ever joined Twas a joust twixt Poetry and Passion Twas a battle twixt Poetry and Hate Though Poetry with Passion filled him and Passion filled him with Poetry from the centuries most remote they rode the winding paths that met and crossed and joined and broke away like lives of men

The beauty of Love inspired Poetry
The whisperings of Pleasure incited Passion

Terror, Mystery, Unrest and Pain were matched against Tenderness, Love, Desire and Link

When the act had been fulfilled inside the Kingdom of Cruelty When they met and knew each other they became connected and exploded

And in that sea immense thousands of stars did fall that with their radiance illuminated the Aura of people and made them to be Poets Poets that wrote with Passion Poets that sang with Passion For without them knowing and in their own sky Poetry had joined Passion Passion had joined Poetry Inseparable union out of mankind's reach and of those beings they believe in and they call gods and for whom they witlessly do kill

-Oh! Powerful an pleasing essence
-Oh! Soul of fire touch my sensitivity
-Come into me and make me feel
-Give me thy Magic and make me fly

And so it was that day by day the link betwixt Poetry and Passion gave life to a few humans called Sensitive People Music and Poetry they did write feeling, loving and knowing Immortalizing their feelings through the profoundest Art
From the centuries most remote they rode and winding paths that upon a time did meet to be parted nevermore

The Flames of Terror set Poetry ablaze
The Groans of Pain gave to Passion life
