i travel around the world just to kiss you through airport terminals and neon lights, i sift through one hundred thousand miles of swift motion and devotion in taxi cabs, i ride through traffic and commotion touching your perfect face i fall into you

as our love fills the reaches of space i dive into you

i'm channeling heat waves of electricity hitch-hiking on the noise with melting frequencies as snow caps tease the sky i call out your name and the land begins to fall under my waking dreams

no amount of distance can ever come between us
