the air outside is getting colder and the autumn skies are turning grey but while I lay here next to you all the seasons seem to fade away it's so hard to pay attention when I have you right here in my arms and it seems that I always lose focus, on the seasons because you are beautiful and I can't concentrate all the leaves are slowly changing it's all very wonderful, or so they say but me, I don't hardly notice cause I can't concentrate on this magnificent day you're so distracting that I don't even notice the cool autumn breeze or the sunset, on the horizon or all of the red falling leaves because you are so beautiful
