well this ain't the place i would rather be i never thought i'd need You here well it complicates when it's a tragedy i should have known not learnt to fear and now i feel like i'm alive but you could never tell outside through all the pain it seems the same i need You, Lord

and now i've found You here (and over and over)
i can't help drawing near (cause You are the reason)
when everything's astray
i know You're a second away well this shouldn't take this long to make me see looking in mirrors gets so dim well it's never easy to balance justice and mercy i leave it up to Him and now i feel like there's a prize that i should never keep inside You took the pain and all the shame i feel alive

and now i've found You here
(and over and over)
i can't help drawing near
(and You are the reason)
when everything's astray

(a second away)

(and over and over)
i can't help drawing near
(and You are the reason)
when everything's astray
