The final hour is getting near.
Time is getting close, I fear.
Footsteps at my door I hear;
Time to pay now, for life so dear.
I want to flee, but it's too late;

My soul is in the grip of Fate.
I close my eyes, take one last breath
And feel the cold, cold hands of Death.

Slowly now I drift away Into an eerie time and space.
I cry out; It does no one hear In this lonely, strange new place?
Blackness closes all around. No longer can I see or feel.
The last thought slowly echoes out: Am I a dream, or am I real?
