All that I believe in.

All that the future means to me.

All that my past built in me.

All that peacemakers hope for.

All that this world deserves.

All that comes to the slave who endures

All that makes me afraid

All that removes fear

All that forms a festival of friends

All that my sins warrant

All that glass tubes can't cure

All that death takes away

All that life takes back

All the earth cries out for

The rocks and the bowed ground

Giving way to the millennia of mistakes cry out!

A rescuer comes, not to break my reed back

But to build it back together.

And I'm looking over my square wooden socket shoulder

Jutted and altogether immovable

And I think I saw a marbled sky and the hope of hopes

COMING DOWN!

In a dream or in my eye, could it have seen??

Could it have been?

O! The wonder I feel!!

All that IÂ've come to become

And all that I wish I was

I might have been more prepared if you would have stopped by tomorrow,

But everyday I can begin a new life!

All this: it is becoming,

It has happened now.
