There was a girl with eyes like diamonds
She had a dream, it was fallin' apart
She loved a man with all she could offer
She loved a man who was breaking her heart
He lived his life with no care for the moment
Drifting a around like a leaf in the breeze
But nothing moves when the wind stops blowing
You can't fall far when you're down on you knees
Now you gotta break free
free from the spell
Throw another coin in the wishing well
Now you gotta break free and make a brand new start
Time will heal your broken heart
Nothing gained without something to offer
She looked around and all she could see
Was a fading light at the end of her driveway
As the light ran out, so did her drema
Now you gotta break free, free from the spell
Throw another coin in the wishing well
Now you gotta break free, from being down and alone
And your broken heart will heal on its own
