"I Die Tomorrow"

If I could outskip today
And run a million miles away
Just anywhere, but fast and far
Cannot take things as they are

I'm frozen, I can hardly move on
I am lost and mad
My body is nearly gone
I just want back what I once had

I lost myself in you, I know
What's in for me here I failed to see
I shattered self-estranged and clumsy
The black in me can not let go

Because your fingers trigger a storm
Because your arms could wrap me so warm
Because your hands are soft and so slow
I die tomorrow

Because your fingers trigger a storm
Because your arms could wrap me so warm
Because your hands are soft and so slow
I die tomorrow

You gave up what had just begun
I stayed, you went, I lost, you won
I wanna free my anger
I know for sure it's far from over

One step ahead two leaps backwards
My wisdom is nothing but words
My life is a garden under snow
Where weed but no flowers will grow

Because your fingers trigger a storm
Because your arms could wrap me so warm
Because your hands are soft and so slow

I die tomorrow

Because I know my regrets are in vain

Because I'm drowning once again
Because it was not served my turn
Because it will belong to her

Because your arms could wrap me so warm
Because your hands are soft and so slow
Because your fingers trigger the storm
I die..

Tomorrow

Because your fingers trigger a storm
Because your arms could wrap me so warm
Because your hands are soft and so slow

You gave up what had just begun (2x)
I stayed, you went, I lost, you won (2x)
I need to free my anger (2x)
I know for sure it's far from over (2x)
Far from over (4x)
