

Cartilage

"Why Do I Watch The Dawn"

Visit "Why Do I Watch The Dawn" on MotoLyrics.com

the fear within, a darkened chasm of memory a burial ground where my flesh is bound scarred mind like stitches of illusions... rotten embalmed mind, thousand decades of dream rancid thoughts... whispers of unjust sorrow severd life...

i'm prisioned by me
'infinity calls
obscenities can't shadow
ethereal bliss...
incision and i'll join thee

* i cast my my wordly flesh aside to greet the spirits of those who died and on my funeral no-oned cried
'cause all the pity i denied chorus:

lost souls haunt me till the dawn that i watch and mourn on my open grave i've sworn an oath impure

infinity calls...
obscenities can't shadow
ethereal bliss...
incisions and i'll join thee

*"i look upon the brightening colors of morning sky and wonder why it seems that i don't fit fitr in this world [this world]
i have this urge to learn something new anything that'll just quench this thirsty [why do i watch the dawn]
i've found out, that in life there are no real answers so i'll just have to die to attain knowledge to my... pain!!

