Walking along the shore
With waves crashing at my feet
I came upon a sight
That I could not believe

A blue sea had now turned black
I pondered and realized
The constant strive for progress
Was seldom criticized

(pre-chorus)
What have we done to this world
This world we used to call our home

(chorus)
Is there an unturned stone
A place on earth that we can call our home
Is there an unturned stone
An unsoiled land where are dreams can grow

Wonders of technology
Create machines that let us be
Thereby have sealed our fate
Of the downfall of childhood dreams

(pre-chorus)
(chorus)

Places we don't recognize
Landscapes we haven't compromised
An island within the sea
Or a valley that lies unseen

(solo)

I beg of you to get the point
And stop the insanity
The end of Mother Nature
We will all cease to be

(pre-chorus)
(chorus)

Places we don't recognize
Landscapes we haven't compromised
An island within the sea
Or a valley that lies unseen
