(Lyrics by Dale, Music by Robert Brookins)

Constant impressions and plenty of will

Time and time again secrets filter through

There's roses in the bathtub and he's still asleep

Wonder to myself, my secrets will he keep?

Playing poker in the dark (with one eye open)

Gamblin' with my heart (and now he's hopin')

oh, he's so..He's so typical

He's so typical..

Waltzing in the shadows with blue overtones

Does my freedom show, but how could he have known?

No smoking in the boys' room with black leather gloves

Then up jumped the moon and out walked the love

No smoking in the boys room

Then out jumped the moon

And out walked the love

He's so typical, tip tip tippee...[etc...fade...human trumpet solo..]
