[Verse 1]

When the moon shines at noontime, and the sun blazes at midnight

Dark and Night coincide, I stay inside and keep the lid tight

Catch side of the morning that passes by through my window

Another child is born, another dies, and still the wind blows

Spin slow, drawn into strong voice of reason

Standing there in soul thinking of summer

Just longin' for another season

For no particular Reason hear I stand-

Just rocked another show, just can't remember where I am

And my families far from here, but the stars are bright this evening

On this morning on this afternoon, just got here now I'm leaving

And I shall remember the marble just as clear as I do yesterday

Never dance with the Devil, cuz I cant afford the hell to pay

When I blast through your speakers every time your pressing play

When I fish the phonograph so we could set the record straight

Dear god I pray-

Just let me show this world a better way

How you helped through to your heart and all the times you fade away

I get to, say these words and speak my piece to Catholic Crowds

Not certain if it's Day or Night but I know the time is NOW

And if we ever lose the purpose as a prelude to the sound

Lets just call it a Day, and burn my empires to the ground...

[Verse 2]

Ya, amazingly, Cask of Amanciatto

Cracks wide open and vibrates your bravado
So I escape, body-bagging, like I'm kinda like Monte Christo World Tour, DL, Koffeshop, and I'm coming to your Bistro
We show bright when it comes to your ability I'll be yellin' out homonyms 'cuz I dwell in possibility
We gonna call it a Day, 'cuz I know your feelin' me Listener, Rapper, Popuri of Life- all synonyms of Cornucopia
I'm so glad you have a wife- In this wolf
