caught like a deer in the headlights gloom-beam shines ever so bright hit me, tell me you need me starvation, promise to feed me make me into a mountain climb me, stab me with your flag let go, why can't you let go? i don't care, i don't ask, i don't know i hope they never find me this road's finally unwinding i escaped just like a master you beg slow i keep going faster it's not too late for something new my mind's been stuck like bugs on glue and you're so far away from me stop coming in my fantasies stop invading my angry head and maybe i will leave my bed again, and fight to understand it's not a fall if you don't land i was young, so dumb and naive you said that i was just brave courage don't come that easy i paid for it up front and foot down haunt me with high wires and dark eyes hold me with arms that i despise forming into a monster i rummage through your heart's dumpster

on your adventures think of me i'll think of you when thoughts run free to chase those wicked butterflies through fields of wonder and surprise a dark cloud hovers just beyond the trees in black oblivions look closely you will find me there don't get to close it's lame to care it's not too late you know that's true
again, and fight to understand
