Let me out, Let me in, when there's no way to win
Than there's no way to feel like the rest
I try and I lose, and I suffer abuse
For acceptance I'd take any quest
But the chains hold me down, and I'm dead on the ground
And there's no hope for rising again
But I won't stop the fight and I know it's not right
But not everybody can win and the rain will kill us all

Another face upon the wall
All I want is to be the same
Want them to know I have a name

Why can't they accept me, it's my difference they see
Am I that difficult to fit in?
I just want company, to fill the gaps in me
And then I can feel whole within Loneliness breeds hate, I will not hesitate
To release it on those who hold down
All the ones who would love, just a glance from above
Just to feel that their voice makes a sound
Let me out, let me in
I try and I lose
The chains hold me down
I won't stop the fight
