Hey there girl, here's a little song for ya
Keep in mind that it's only my words I want to tell you a little bit about me

I was once lost, gone from the centre couldn't tell what direction I was going in Followed the signs of another man's promise (Yeah another man's promise)

Oh I turned to the outside for answers, that I knew I could only find within And the question grew like a cancer, making my mind
and my body limp
I wish there was a back way out
I wish there was a back way out

I turn to the mirror to find me and closed my eyes again then I opened a window behind me, and let some air in

Held my breath as I swam to the surface higher I got the stronger the current I was so afraid that I'd drown, as I was slowly sinking back down

I looked to the sky for the answers that I knew I could only find within
And I put all my hopes in tomorrow, cause I didn't know where to begin
I wish there was a back way out
Wish there was a back way out

I turned to the mirror to find me and closed my eyes
again

Oh let some air in, let some air in (7x)

I turned to the outside for answers that I knew I could only find within
and the question grew like a cancer, making my mind
and my body limp

I wish there was a back way out
Wish there was a back way out

again
then I opened the window behind me to let some air in

And I turned to the mirror to find me and closed my eyes again
then I opened the window behind me to let some air in Let some air in (4x)
