The water washes all the souls beneath it
It covers all the ones who are afraid
And though they seem to run away
They know they're coming home one day
Will they know you're with them all the way

For every moment
They woke up in silence
For every time they felt the rain on their face
For every instant
They look up to heaven
It's just another chance to feel your embrace

A soldier takes a picture of his family
He prays he'll make it safe home every night
All the time he's been away
He knows he's coming home one day
To see his family's faces one more time

For every moment
He woke up in silence
For every time he felt the rain on his face
For every instant
He looks up to heaven
It's just another chance to feel your embrace

I can feel you raining down
As your blood runs from your brow
I can feel you raining down
As some blood runs from your brow

All this time
I sat there listening
No one cared about it but me
So I know i'll never be alone

For every moment
I woke up in silence
For every time I felt the rain on his face
For every instant
I look up to heaven
It's just another chance to feel Your embrace

Blood running down
Blood running down
Is just another chance to feel You
I always feel more near
Every moment I look up to Heven
And see You there
