You have to draw a line somewhere-You can't just let yourself go.
You can't just blindly. You have to learn to know. You can't just laugh and play. You have to build your path. You can't be moody all the day. Sometimes you will stop and laugh. You will see that you have to change but, stay bold and strong. In life you will want a lot of things. but, lots of things are wrong. You will soon find out. There is so much here to do. Everything gets old. You know nothing's really knew. You know one thing in life. You know that you will some day die, You will never know when or how, but always wonder why.(Stolen from Blatz:"So sleep, scribble one, sleep. Take comfort in the night's embrace 'cause the morning sun's gonna open your eyes, see that you live in a fucked up place. Yeah, sleep, little one, sleep. Take comfort in the night's embrace 'cause the morning sun's gonna open your eyes, see that you live in a fucked up place.")You are shit-if you cannot see the death of our world approaching faster than the lash of a whip. Can't you see the despair upon people's faces barely hidden by false smiles and false promises. Promises of freedom, promises of an end to all war and greed. The fake people keep you looking towards the future as a utopian dream. The future is not so serene. The future is a machine.
You are shit if you can't see it happening. Look at the faces of people passing by, they are machines. The children playing in the street below me are beautiful but it is a cold world that they will grow up into.
