I believe in Heaven and know
That I should just except it all
So content with the paths that I walk on
Surely I should see it all

So take care and don't go too far, I will miss your soul
And when the distance grows and the nights are long
And your scared at times and you wonder why
Take care and don't go too far, I will miss your soul

I've looked into the sky one hundred times
And I've seen the stars that shine so bright
And I'm sure that one of them is you, my friend
Watching and waiting and hoping that I'll be alright

So take care and don't go too far, I will miss your soul
And when the distance grows and the nights are long
And your scared at times and you wonder why
Take care and don't go too far, I will miss your soul

I believe in Heaven and know
That I should just except it all
So content with the paths that I walk on
Surely, surely, surely I should see it all

So take care and don't go too far, I will miss your soul
And when the distance grows and the nights are long
And your scared at times and you wonder why
Take care and don't go too far
The road back home is shorter than you know

The road back home is shorter than you know
The road back home is shorter than you know
The road back home is shorter than you know
