"Goodbye Geoffrey Drake"

We are born in silence, there's nothing
or no one to blame.
Soon we learn to fight, or die trying, so my father said.
Said we could still be friends, that don't mean nothing
as it rushes to my head, my head.
You never loved you'd just pretend, or something.
Darlin' you really should have said

Cause all I wanted was a little love.
All I needed was a little care.
All I wanted was a little love and tenderness yeah yeah.

I hear the siren blaze in the distance.
Her blood still on my hands,
But there's no way I would hide cause I loved.
Surely you understand.

Your name is Geoffrey Drake, and you're under arrest
he said
and led me down the road in chains.
Neighbors all turned their heads.

Goodbye Geoffrey Drake, a name they never will forget
as poison rushes through my veins.
Steals my find breath.

But all I wanted was a little love.
All I needed was a little care.
All I wanted was a little love and tenderness yeah yeah
yeah.

We all die in silence, there's nothing.
Only ourselves to blame.
Too much fight, no love gets you nowhere.
I wish my mother had stayed.

Cause all I wanted was a little love.
All I needed was a little care.
All I wanted was a little love and tenderness yeah yeah
yeah.

All I wanted was a little love.

All I wanted was a little care.
All I needed was a little love and tenderness
