"He Who Sleeps"

awaken my brothers,
to divulge this enemy,
of vengeance we rise to enlighten the ones who sleep worlds have passed and so too has time this place of hate, thy worlds shall burn my slumber now disturbed, you will destroy yourselves mortals, your slithering existence sickens the gods, my brothers humans, I shall feast upon your ignorance. it awoke me, from timeless sleep and so I watch you pray, my dreams destroyed, my visions lost forgive me father ? I am not your god and spite your worlds you have fallen, curse your empty lives you crawl to me, and beg to me my sheep, blind, like wolves you turn on yourselves
