this is one for our people [yea]
gonna shout it loud, shout it loud [yeah, yea, yea..]

[Chorus:]

where is the blackman's paradise..
that marcus garvey fight for yesterday
and we're still fighting for today

where is the blackman's paradise..
that bob marley fight for today

where is the blackman's paradise...
martin luther king fight for yesterday
and we're still fighting for today.

[Verse 1:]

this maybe harsh to say but to live in a white world it's a statement that many fatters say but jah is our protector
and we not fear to say:
it's a prejudice world, [yea]
in a prejudice world.

[Chorus:]

where is the blackman's paradise..
that marcus garvey fight for yesterday
and we're still fighting for today

where is the blackman's paradise..
that bob marley fight for today

where is the blackman's paradise...
martin luther king fight for yesterday
and we're still fighting for today.

[Verse 2:]

is there unity and the philosophy that gives them superiority.
calling us minority and in their hearts they know we are the majority.

its a prejudice world,in a prejudice world.

[Chorus:]
where is the blackman's paradise..
that marcus garvey fight for yesterday
and we're still fighting for today

where is the blackman's paradise..
that bob marley fight for today

where is the blackman's paradise...
martin luther king fight for yesterday
and we're still fighting for today.

take a moment to sit down and meditate.
history will recall and everything we convey.
i hope the message in this song will provide the strengths we'll need,to shout it loud:
it's a prejudice world [yeah]
it's a prejudice world.

[Chorus:]
where is the blackman's paradise.. nelson mandela fights for today louis fara come fights for today

where is the blackman's paradise
that the rastaman fights for today that the ghetto youths that cried for today

where is the blackman's paradise
that the singers sing about today that the musicians played for today

where is the blackman's paradise.. what will tell the ghetto youths say what will we tell the children's we cry,we cry [yea,yea]...
