It's too hot and we're ready to burn
It takes a big mistake before a lesson is learned.
It's too late to turn back the time.
The weatherman has fallen through a hole in the sky.
And he's long gone, yes, he's long gone,
And there's no way that he's coming back.

We're too slow, beaten by the heat
You need a real reason to get onto your feet.
It's too long since we've watered the flowers.
And every year we're hoping for some April showers.
But they won't come, no they won't come
And I'm done with us digging holes

Because it's summertime here all year long round.
And the rain won't pour anymore.
We've gotta move.
(To a land where the grass is growing,
To a land where the grass is)

Because it's summertime here all year long round.
And the rain won't pour anymore.
We've gotta move.

The seven seas are beginning to merge
They've swallowed up the cities
Now they're starting to purge.
Sun sets on an ocean of trash.
A world of functionality reducing to ash.
And it's all gone, yes it's all gone
The world that we used to know

Because it's summertime here all year long round.
And the rain won't pour anymore.
We've gotta move.
(To a land where the grass is growing,
To a land where the grass is)

Because it's summertime here all year long round.
And the rain won't pour anymore.
We've gotta move.

We've gotta move.
Gotta move.

(To a land where the grass is growing,
To a land where the grass is)
