Don't wake me. I've fallen asleep. Don't hate me. I have no relief. This burden is shredding my soul. This cycle is out of control. You call me as your friend, as I drive these nails again. I'm falling into you. You call me as your friend, as I break your heart again. I'm falling into you. In a darkened room, this pain is complete. In my selfish tomb, I smell the defeat. Why do I medicate? Why do I go back to the things I hate? There's something broken in me - I must be soaking in my apathy. All who are found in this place; come to the ocean of grace. All who have spit in his face; come and live! You call me as your friend - my heart beats once again. I'm falling into you. You call me as your friend - I come alive again. I'm falling into you.
