If i can speak as much as i can see

It would be the worst i can say

If your heart can burn like mine

I dont know what would be
Her tears are drowned towards the light

The next door in, together we meet

But if she were true, no longer would i despite the light
But i shall not find that mystery

Should i love and ease her pain?
I felt the worst of love

But through the flames love did touch
So many flaws, poor, lie, and cheat

If this so wrong that can see

I would not lose her sight

So wrong, but love can....
Though love might make me leave,

She might make me stay
