Verse 1:

I keep thinking 'bout the dream I had last night // can't remember how long it's been since the last time //
we sat down, had a proper conversation //
I know that the way I'm living is causing complications // and it weakens me, it's overwhelming // when I try to call you but ain't got no reception // on my phone, I'm alone and it's crushing my hopes and // aspirations, there's a sudden rush of emotions // and sometimes when reality escapes // my mind, I thank God that I'm man enough to say // when I made a mistake and admit that I was wrong //
I just take my feelings, make 'em fit into the song // and sing it to you, I just hope that you can hear me // (hear me...) and see the real me 'cause I can see you clearly // then I wake up, shaking and shivering, cold sweats //
all over my body, I'm feeling homesick... //

Chorus:

Here we go now, baby //
I've been on the move for so long // the road is getting darker //
and I don't know, girl, maybe // I've run out of reasons to hold on // but then I hear your voice and // know that it will lead me home... //

Verse 2:

This is what I've been working for the past nine years // baby, lift your chin, I know feels like we're light years // apart but in a couple of days I'll be right there // to hold you through the cold nights, lead you through the nightmares // no more waking up crying in the middle of the night // I'll be happy to see your face on the pillow next to mine // feeling your wonderful scent as I'm kissing your face // and you're giving me goose bumps when you whisper my name //

so we live and never regret, forgive but never forget //
I just want to treat you right and give you the respect // that you need from a man, be the best I can be // 'cause when I feel you there resting on my chest, girl, I feel at home... //
