

Jaewon "Some Kind Of Hero"

Visit "Some Kind Of Hero" on MotoLyrics.com

Verse 1:

I was 12 years old when I decided to rock the nation //
I was sick of school, I was tired of indoctrination //
I needed somewhere to hide so I locked the basement // and grabbed the microphone with a smile as I blocked the hatred // from those who doubted me 'cause I could do without it, see // I knew what I wanted to do, 'cause music is allowing me // to be free now as I look out over the crowd I see // these kids reminding me that dreams are never out of reach // so I'll keep conquering from north, west, south to east //
'cause nowadays I've got more than one mouth to feed //
(you see) I went from gravel and pebbles to mountain peaks // so look at me now mom and dad, aren't you/I bet you're proud of me?... //

Chorus:

Once again - here I go //
walking down that same old road //
I've been high, I've been low //
I've been lost but now I know // it's my life - it's my pain // I've seen sunshine, I've seen rain // through the storm - look at me //
and you will see some kind of hero... //
Some kind of hero... //
Some kind of hero... //
Some kind of hero... //

Verse 2:

Watch me turn a simple song into a masterpiece // right in front of everyone who's ever laughed at me // stepped all over my dreams and had me doubting myself //
'cause the first time they did I made a vow to myself // to never set my dreams aside for anything // that I wasn't going to hide, just write, but many things // came in my direction that I couldn't quite understand // couldn't comprehend, that's why I became a running man //

staying up late nights trying to cure my stagefright // barely seeing daylight, living an insane life //
it was obvious that I was running out of fuel // but I didn't give a damn that I was flunking out of school //
this dream was all that I had and I would die before I'd let 'em take it //
man, you must be blind if you can't see my dedication
//
it's so much more than just ink on a paper //
so my spirit will live on through the tunes I've created...
//

Verse 3:

Yeah, I admit it, there were times I was sick and tired //
they thought I was gone but this dragon's still spitting fire //
so focused, while these other cats sat back //
I just kept marching with the swagger of a badass //
I'm doing things that these legends have never done // and you know the funny thing is; I'm only 21 //
but they keep denying there's a legend in the makings
//
waiting for me to abdicate when this is just my coronation... //

Visit Jaewon page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.