Left unborn
In room where songs become
And voices crack and moan

Losing grip
Beneath your fingertips
That turn me off and on

But where's the voice
Yeah where's that distant song
That whispers through the air
When your're all alone

Only sound
That stays after I'm done
Echo of the loss

Powerless
Dressed up in words and rhymes
Make-up of truthful lies

Music floods
All of our space and time
And draws without a prize

But where's the voice
Yeah where's that fading song
That whispers through the air
When you're on your own
And where're those lines
That dodged the greatest minds
And drove them mad and blind
Spinning around their shine

Sink through sand
By every letter penned
Can't give what can't have

Again today
I'll drink from empty cup
And serve you food of clay

Devil's clown
I'll turn this martyred blood
Into the wine of sound

But where's the voice
Yeah where's that distant song
That whispers through the air
When you're on your own
That dodged the greatest minds
And turned them mad and blind
Spinning around their shine

Where's the voice
Yeah where's that fading song
That whispers through the air
And screams out of your bones
That tricked the greatest minds
Mocking all their sighs

Where's the voice
Yeah where's that ancient song
That'll whisper through the air
When we're long gone
Where're those lines
That bleed through ears and eyes
And laugh at all the tries
Of both shammers and the wise.
