(Raul Malo, Al Anderson)
every night alone
every night I spent without you every little thing about you runs right through my mind I wonder where you are and do you ever think about me and if you get the feeling that there's something missing too but I should know you'll never come back to me even though I will always love you
I should know
I'm the one to blame something I did fine without you thought I could fool myself and tell me everything's alright
every night alone
and every night I spent without you every little thing about you
runs right through my mind
even though I will always love you
I should know
I should know
you'll never come back to me
even though I will always love you I should
I should know
you'll never come back to me
even though I will always love you
