"Everyone Will Die"

Everyone will die
And everyone will lose,
So what ya gonna do
With the moments you have before it's you?
It doesn't mean goodbye.
It's just a simple truth,
The shedding of a lifetime of layers
That once embodied you.
Like winter into spring
And summer into fall.
A cyle of intense introspection before the curtain call.

'Cause everyone must die
And everyone must lose,
So who you gonna love in the meantime before it
catches you?

Everyone will die. (Everyone will die.)
Everyone will lose. (Everyone will lose.)
It doesn't mean goodbye. (It doesn't mean goodbye.)
It's just a simple truth.

Every single smile
And every single tear,
Reminders of the moments we shared
In the instant we were here.
If everyone will die
And everyone will lose,
Then who you gonna love in the meantime before it
catches you?
