Darkness candlelight watch you breathe and hold you tight.

Love is in your eyes, green and light like summer skies.

And you answer this tricky question with a kiss.

What a twist of fate, we both know that love won't wait.

The tears we shed will feeds our love.

Standing in the rain, will it end now who's to blame?

Now this love is stained, nothing ventured nothing gained...

The tears we shed will feed our love.

When you turn and walk away, time is on our side!

But it's over can't you see the time is right to start again.
