Da, da, da, da, dadadada

Have I come to casually?
Because it seems to me,
There's something I've neglected.
How does one approach a Deity with informality;
And still protect the Sacred?

'Cause you came and chose to wear the skin of all of us.

And it's easy to forget You left a throne.
And the line gets blurry all the time.
Between daily and Divine.
And it's hard to know the difference.

Oh, let me not forget to tremble.
Oh, let me not forget to tremble.
Face down on the ground do I dare,
To take the liberty to stare at You.
Oh, let me NOT...
Oh, let me NOT forget to tremble.

What a shame to think that I'd appear;
even slightly cavalier;
In the matter of of salvation.
Do I claim this gift You freely gave?
As if it were mine to take with such little hesitation?

'Cause You came and stood among the very least of
us,
And it's easy to forget You left a throne.

Oh, let me not forget to tremble.
Oh, let me not forget to tremble.

Face down on the ground do I dare...
To take the liberty to stare at You.
Oh, let me NOT...
Oh, let me NOT forget to tremble.

The cradle and the grave could not contain Your Divinity.

Neither can I oversimplify this love.

Oh, let me not forget to tremble...(to tremble, to tremble)
Nahaaaa
Face down on the ground do I dare,
To take the liberty to stare at You.
Oh, let me ...
Oh, let me NOT forget to tremble.
NahahaNahaaaaa
