Half my life is spent wondering what to do or wondering where it went or why I ever bothered to at least a hundred times I've wondered why you're not here with me or if there's something I could do to make you want to be I'd do anything for you but I can never think of anything to do just tell me something you want done I'd be glad to take it on you could do that couldn't you? There's nothing I wouldn't do for you if I could think of anything to do I'm trying to think of more things within my means like maybe I could bore my way into your dreams elaborate gestures that impressed you so you'd want to be mine if I knew what they were I'd do them all the time I'd do anything I could but I can never think of anything that good and I think it's pretty clear that we'll just wind up sitting here so try to be a realist sit down and write me a list of some and I'll make sure that everything gets done we've got some things to finish that some pre-planning won't diminish, much and you know I love it when you take me to the top and then you say don't stop so let's continue order anything on the menu did I mention that the power lies within you? I'd do anything for you but I can never think of anything to do it may sound like empty words to you but if nothing occurs to you at least take off your wedding ring I really would do anything for you if I could think of anything to do anything, anything, anything.
