TAKE ME HOME

Sue Hammond, c. 1982

1. I've traveled these miles through dozens of smiles'
Never wanting a man or a home.

Then you came along, and in less than a song
The seeds of love you had sown.

Chorus:

Take me home, where the black bird sings by your door
I won't ask any more

And I'm so tired of living alone.

Take me home, where the black bird sings by your door
I won't ask any more

And I'm so tired of living alone.

2. I knew from the start you'd be breaking my heart,
It's a traveling life that we lead.

Now are games at a draw, 'cause you know that I saw
In you, a reflection of me.

3. I won't ask you to stay as you go on your way,
But there's one thing I want you to know,

When you are weary, and your days are too dreary,
You can come back to me and I'll say:

Sue Hammond is a former member of the all-women
Bosom Buddies

Stringband, taught this to Sally Rogers while living in a teepee

of her own construction in Bath, MI. Shortly thereafter, she was found riding a motorcycle built for two across the Sahara Desert.

She now makes her home in Galway in Ireland. (1984)
