People are different now
Said my boy coated in sugar rain
As careful as a shooting star
He bore his world and went to far inside of me
And I just wanted to touch his shine
Take a sip of these tears
They are sweet with my ignorance saved through the years
And I've been avoiding you for hours
Just to see if you won't fall from what you're meant to be
And I'm just careful all around his shine
And you are the mirror of my fears
The scariest things I feel
All fall and rain like the sweetest tears we know
Oh I just can't go
And I've been walking around
Gouging innocent eyes up from their grounds
His sex is out of reach on the highest shelf
There's nobody to blame so I'll blame myself
And all of his shiny eyes
Which were salvaged by a compromise
And you are the bearer of my fears
The loveliest things I feel
All fall and rain like the sweetest tears we know
Oh I just can't go...on down to the way we were
