My heart is everything but bursting with every single feeling I feel tonight because something just ain't right. Because I've come to find there's no peace of mind without You by my side. I've been so afraid to make mistakes and break Your heart. What does it take to make me walk away from everything, everything that I know and hold so closely? So if all of this is ending, bring a new beginning so much sweeter still. I'm laying down my will. Because I know not what to do, but my eyes are fixed on You, and only You. I'm not afraid to leave this place and face these fears. Please etch your words upon my heart and keep me ever closer to You.
