Goodbye -

It's the weigh'n down that's the hardest part,
It's the heavy of a smile, that can never be enough,
It's the mascaraed when your face is to the ground,
It's the bitter taste of laughter in your mouth,

Goodbye my saddened song,
Goodbye my broken heart,
You've been so close to me,
But I don't need you anymore,

And it's the choice that I become in what I've made,
It's the ever-present calling of the grave,
It's the glory of the sun, it's the comfort of the waves,
It's the song of birds, the angels and the saints,

Goodbye my saddened song,
Goodbye my broken heart,
You've been so close to me,
But I don't need you anymore,
And walk'n down the lines that rest upon my face,
And see'n love behind me and to where I give my steps,
I will join the sound so sweet upon my breath,

Goodbye my saddened song,
Goodbye my broken heart,
You've been so close to me,
But I don't need you anymore.
