I can still see on that cold night,
I turned to face you and you said 'go',
Nothing hurts like leaving,
The ghosts come back to me,
Walking streets that I'd seen before,
Feeling numb and I watched them laugh,
A man can't live so empty,
But I can't feel it now,

I can't take this - you've pushed me just too far,
Please don't touch me - let me leave, just set me free,

But if you said so - I would answer,
No bravado - just contrition,
You're my downfall - my destruction,
But I can't help coming back for more,

Spoke to some old Romeo in a mirror that lied to me,
I can see it all now,
and it's all just doubt and fear,

Walking home now and I can't recognise,
It disturbs me as I wish I were a coward now,

But if you said so....

Crying into a vale of tears,
Feeling nothing 'cause nothing's left,
Drinking is no comfort,
as I go outside once more and scream,

I feel homesick when I'm coming home again,
I've no place now as things all phase before my eyes,

But if you said so...
