The sky opened with roaring An impetuous wind came from the north A mighty cloud and blazing fire, brightness all around Lightning flickering, a glittering shape appeared on thunderous wings and wheels within a wheel My eyes have seen the chariots of the gods above all nations their glory dwells above the skies they will trample out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored, the refusal of their rules brings anger to the lords I was chosen to deliver the announcement of death the imminent judgement for disregarding their commandments
Ten Commandments

Blindness from one intense flash a vehement blast and a great column of fire the only remains: smoke, debris, dust The extermination of the fallen creation by the terrible weapons of the gods A manifest of their wrath Divine beings appeared on earth they were the heroes of the Old the men of renown I write the prophecy of mankind's destiny dictated by the angry lord visitors from distant stars they trampled out the vintage where the grapes of wrath were stored the refusal of their rules brought anger by the lords
