I used to worry when I walk down the street each and every day. I used to worry about all the neighbors and what they might say. I used to worry when I went grocery shopping people laugh at me behind my back. I never realized their true intentions though I scowled right back. I never realized all of my potentials until I met you. I used to worry when I took a shower my neighbors would peek inside the bathroom window. And I used to look over my shoulder everywhere that I would go. Now everything happening is so much different you changed me. My whole world is so much brighter you made me happy. I never realized all of my potentials until I met you. Now you've come and made my world a difference since I met you.
