Long's the life, steep's the climb, I took the match and lit the fire, fire pain for the pain, my guts ache, built by the sin that was taught by the father, the father now come and walk with me

Chorus:

A journey of a 1000 miles it starts with one step Plowing out the rows, the bleeding of the rose
A butterfly's wings can start tornados don't ya know harvesting the souls, burying the bones

Deep is the hole, shovel's always full, I bit the dog and beat the master, master Eye for an eye, tooth's been pulled, lost all control that was taught by the mother
The mother, now come and walk with me

Chorus

Another feeble man, arms outstretched in a distant land

wonders where it all went wrong he's followed us too long Another fallen man, that failed to make a stand what have I done wrong, left here all alone
The voice inside my head, is it me or an alien throw me down the stairs, since I just don't care no more

I can't take wind. I can't fight the storm, anymore
I don't have the will. I can't be the storm, anymore

Chorus+

The hurricane's eye is like the calm before the storm darkening the shore, settling the score
A butterfly's wings can start tornados don't ya know harvesting the souls, burying the bones, of old
