If who I am is where Iâ€™ve been
Then youâ€™ve seen the world
But realize soon that youâ€™ve been visiting
From the confines of this dirty hotel
To a bedroom, inside of a home

It only takes love, to build this sanctuary
It only takes love, I find this necessary
It only takes love, to build this sanctuary
I want to find love that is not temporary

So build a frame, add the porch, lock the windows,
Sweep the floor,
The house you created just locked love out the door
Does a war need weapons to cause a wound?
Because I canâ€™t stop this bleeding in this house on my own

The bullets hit my skin, but are deflected by my heart
In order to survive, Iâ€™ve had to harden myself
