i loved the world when we were poor when winter banged on summer's door pain was april rain upon my skin i sheltered as each friend was tamed and shackled by the wedding game life has left a stain upon my skin soldier boy sold your arms your eyes are cold and the spark is gone my blackest days were banished white i prayed upon my darkest night bible dreams the lives of all aboard i slept beside this angry town kept faith alive and far from harm torn up and i'll die a boy still born soldier boy sold your arms
your eyes are cold and the spark is gone they chose in you to bear the stain but god has left this world we're at and the scars remain, the scars remain
