Humans are a cruel, despicable
Non-caring breed
Only willing to further themselves
While spitting on those in need

They will obtain what is yours
Once you turn your cheek
Gapping for gain
Plotting against the meek

I feel as if everyone is toppling me
And very often competition
Is smothering me

Every rat including me
Sifts through paper
While sneering jealously
Toward the new invaders

Their private thoughts register hatred
But their expressions reveal a happy farce
And their judgmental thoughts swirl
And their smiles are very sparse
